Stacey Cannon was named vice president and chief legal counsel for global operations of Orion Health, the company announced.

Cannon, who declined to provide her age, served previously as general counsel for Streamazzo, a Paris-based developer of mobile phone applications, and as senior international counsel at software maker Esmertec in Switzerland. She holds a law degree from the Boston University School of Law and a bachelor's degree from Rutgers, the State University of New Jersey-New Brunswick. Cannon will lead North American, Middle East and African legal initiatives, the company said.

Boston-based Orion, owned by Orion Health Systems International in New Zealand, develops clinical workflow and healthcare information technology applications for physicians.
