Three of the nine critical access hospitals comprising the Western Washington Rural Health Care Collaborative have gone live on a health information exchange using platform technology from Orion Health, Santa Monica, Calif.

The platform includes clinical messaging software, a master patient index and a clinical data repository. The collaborative expects to expand the HIE to all nine member hospitals and the state's Level 1 trauma center at Harborview Medical Center in Seattle.

The collaborative serves 154,000 residents in all or parts of nine counties. More information is available at wwrhcc.org and orionhealth.com.
